What's New In?

SCAR Divi is a software application that allows you to automate all those actions that you have to do on a daily basis on your computer. The program is able to do this by using color, image, pattern and text recognition algorithms, gathering data about the state in which your computer is in and acting upon it exactly like you have programmed it to. The interface is quite easy to work with, as it presents in the upper side of the main window a Menu Bar, where you find all the actions that you can take in the program, but also shortcut buttons to the most used actions. Furthermore, the screen in which you will be able to write script is quite big enough so that you will not have to put strain on your eyes. Seeing the way this program works, it cannot be said that it can be used by absolutely anyone. The interface makes it easy for you to get around it, but the people that will actually be able to work in this app will be those that have some previous experience with scripting. A really nice thing about SCAR Divi is the support for Pascal, the default scripting language you must know in order to create new projects. This will make things easier for users, as most programmers have worked with this language at least once in the past. This program also allows you to create and define hotkeys, so that you can run, pause and stop script with more ease. Furthermore, you will also be able to define hotkeys when picking colors or Bitmap. To sum up, SCAR Divi is a very useful program that can make your life much easier by automating all those actions that you take on a daily basis on your computer. Although the interface is intuitive, you should know that this program cannot be used by people that do not know the Pascal programming language.

About a dozen unemployed people are trying to block contractors hired by Sonoma County's Public Works department from clearing trees from a middle-class neighborhood. The protesters want the county to pay for a job that an Associated Press analysis found Sonoma County had billed the state for earlier this month. County supervisors are expected to consider the protesters' request during a meeting Tuesday at the county administration building, and the Public Works department has already agreed to hire residents. However, county spokesman Tim Olson says residents also will have to start clearing the trees by the end of next week or face fines. He says the department had planned to hire residents at a rate of $25 an hour but has not done so. All of the protesters work for the county, Olson says.

The protests come after the Associated Press found that Sonoma County billed the state about $250,000 for public-works workers' work clearing trees that didn't meet state guidelines from the Thomas and St. Lawrence fires. The Associated Press reported the work, performed by a private contractor hired by Sonoma County, violated the state's Healthy Communities
